EAGER TO SHARE OUR

Love and Joy

Dear Expectant Mother,

We haven't met yet, but we have been praying for you and your little one for a long time.

My name is Theresa, and I am a mother, a daughter, and a professional in higher education. More than anything, I am a woman who believes that family is built on love, faith, and a shared story. My journey as a mother began five years ago when my son was born, and he has been the greatest joy of my life.

As a single mother by choice, I have built a life defined by stability and a deep support system. We have a cozy home in Montgomery filled with laughter, a church family at Word of Life that is ready to wrap their arms around a new child, and a 'big brother' who is already practicing his lullabies.

Choosing adoption is an act of incredible love. If you choose our family, please know that your child will grow up knowing their story and knowing the courage you showed. They will be raised with the values of the 'village' that surrounds us—one where education, faith, and family are the pillars.

Thank you for taking a moment to look into our lives. We are so excited to see how this story unfolds.

With respect and hope

Introduction Letter

hello♡

We are Theresa & Jaidyn, and we're thrilled to share our story with you.

Thank you for taking the time to get to know us. Our journey has been a beautiful tapestry woven with love, laughter, and the decision to embrace the joys of adoption. As a single mom to a 5 year old son, our hearts are brimming with excitement as we eagerly anticipate expanding our family through adoption.

My Story & Why Am I Adopting

My journey toward adoption is deeply personal and rooted in both faith and love for my family.

It grew over time through life experiences, faith, and a deep desire to build a loving family.

Along the way, I experienced two IVF attempts that didn't lead to the outcome I had hoped for. Even in those moments, I held onto hope and peace, because I have already been incredibly blessed with my 5-year-old son, who is truly the light of my life.

Through every season, I've learned that joy isn't defined by circumstances, but by faith and gratitude for what you already have. My son often talks about wanting a sibling, and that desire has only strengthened my heart for adoption. I've spent over 20 years rooted in my church community, where I've learned the importance of compassion, stability, and caring for others. Those values have shaped how I live and how I parent. I believe in my spirit that the same faith that carried me this far will continue to guide me, and that God will bless our family with another child meant to be part of our story. Adoption, for me, is not a second choice—it is a calling rooted in love, faith, and the desire to grow our family in the way it is meant to be.

Faith & Values

A Foundation of Faith

Our faith shapes how we parent and how we treat others. We walk through every season with gratitude, teaching our children to find joy in both life's big milestones and its quiet, everyday moments.

Kindness & Compassion

We believe in leading with a giving heart. Our home is a place where mistakes are met with grace, and where helping our neighbors and community is a natural part of daily life.

A Loving Village

Supported by a deeply rooted church family and devoted friends, your child will grow up surrounded by positive role models, constant encouragement, and a safe, stable community that loves them unconditionally.

My Family & Friends

Throughout my adoption journey, I am deeply grateful for the unwavering support of my family, friends and church family. They have been humble in their encouragement, always offering help without hesitation or expectation.

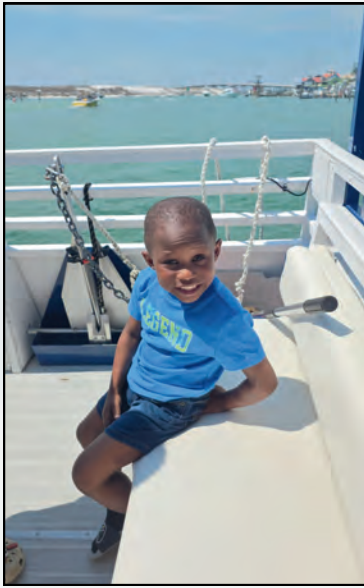

Their support has been consistent and genuine, providing strength in moments of uncertainty and reassurance when I needed it most. I can rely on them to stand beside me with love, patience, and understanding, and their presence has made this journey feel less overwhelming and more filled with hope.

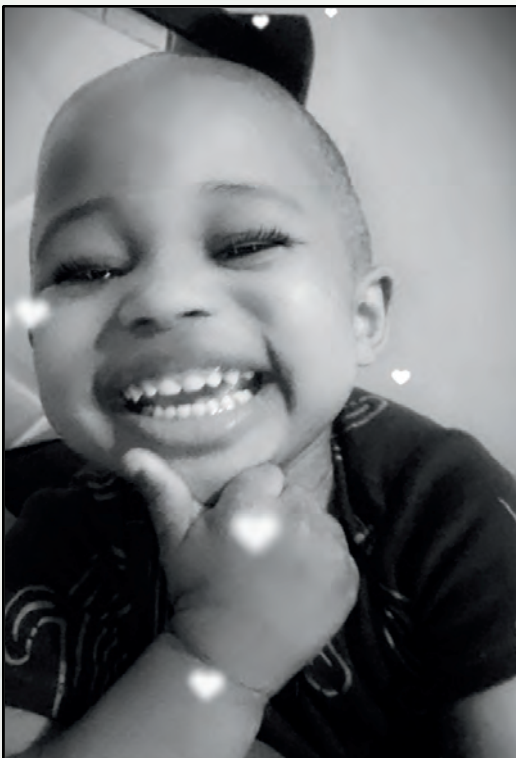

Big Brother

My son is so excited about becoming a big brother and talks about it often. He has such a kind, loving heart and is already so nurturing with younger children. He looks forward to having someone to read stories with, share toys with, and make memories with as they grow together. Watching his excitement and the love he already has for a future sibling reminds me how ready our home is to welcome another child with unconditional love, laughter, patience, and support.

Our Loving Home

We have a loving three-bedroom home filled with warmth, laughter, and stability.

Our nice-sized backyard gives plenty of room to run around, play, and jump on the trampoline. We love spending time together outdoors, especially during the summer with backyard birthday parties, family gatherings, and hamburgers and hotdogs fresh off the grill on warm weekends. We look forward to creating a home where a child feels safe, supported, deeply loved, and free to simply enjoy being a kid.

Holidays and Traditions

Our holidays are special because we truly enjoy gathering together and spending time with family and friends. Each family member hosts a holiday at their home throughout the year, giving us all the chance to come together, play games, laugh, eat good food, and simply enjoy one another's company. In January, we even vote on where we will take our family vacation during the summer, which has become one of our favorite traditions. We also have family in Ohio, and we try to make the trip there at least once every two years to stay connected and spend quality time together. Spring break usually means a trip to the beach because the kids love playing in the sand and collecting seashells. More than anything, we genuinely enjoy being around each other, so whenever we have an opportunity to gather — even outside of holidays — we make the time to do it.

Support System/Team

We are blessed to have a strong and loving support system made up of close family and friends who are excited to welcome another child into our lives. Our family is very involved, and we spend a lot of time together throughout the year celebrating holidays, birthdays, vacations, cookouts, and everyday moments. We have people we can rely on for encouragement, guidance, childcare support, and help whenever needed. Most importantly, our support system is filled with people who will provide a child with unconditional love, stability, and a strong sense of belonging as they grow
